Welcome to the 2013 IAMCR/AIERI/AIECS Conference!

Or, as they say in Ireland: Céad Míle Fáilte -- A Hundred Thousand Welcomes!

As some of us will remember, the IAMCR met at Dublin City University in 1993. After 20 years, we have returned to again share our work, plan future activities, meet new members, and further strengthen our global friendships.

An unprecedented number of abstracts were submitted this year, presenting some daunting challenges for the Local Organizing Committee, led by Paschal Preston, and the organization’s Section and Working Group heads. They all deserve our heartfelt thanks for their hard work and dedication in planning an impressive and exciting conference program.

We gather during a period that has been characterized by a number of crises, a reoccurring theme that has haunted the halls of IAMCR conferences during the last few years. Thus, the conference theme, “Crises, ‘Creative Destruction’ and the Global Power and Communication Orders,” offers us the possibility of discussing a wide range of issues related to media and communication.

Best wishes for an intellectually stimulating conference and an enjoyable visit to Dublin.

A Big Welcome to all attendees at the 2013 IAMCR/AIERI/AIECS Conference from the local organising committee in Dublin!

It is a really great pleasure to welcome back the IAMCR to Dublin City University, almost 20 years to the day since the School of Communication hosted the IAMCR’s ‘Europe in Turmoil’ conference on 24-27 June, 1993. According to feedback received then, that was a terrific conference in many ways, intellectually, socially and culturally speaking. We have every reason to expect the same from this year’s conference, only it will be much bigger and better thanks to the 2,450 Abstracts submitted by you, members and associates from more than 86 countries—a record number for an IAMCR conference.

Our theme for this year’s conference is also a very serious and challenging one: Crises, ‘Creative Destruction’ and the Global Power and Communication Orders. It’s a theme that almost writes itself given the setting—for Ireland lies at the very epicentre of the storm of deep economic crisis and attendant austerity processes that have been unfolding in many parts of Europe and USA since 2008. But we also very much welcome and look forward to wider and multiple international perspectives on crisis and austerity as well as resistances to same, and how these relate to core concerns in media and communication studies.

The heart of IAMCR conferences is centred around multiple animated but collegial intellectual exchanges between colleagues located in very different social, political and cultural settings. We feel certain that the 1,400 plus attendees at this conference will contribute loads in terms of sharing the fruits of recent work and laying plans for future activities, meeting old friends and making new ones. An IAMCR conference is usually a rare and privileged exemplar of global collegiality in practice as well as theory, and Dublin in 2013 seems likely to well match such high expectations.

But IAMCR conferences are also about more than intellectual work. One truly distinctive feature is a lively social and cultural agenda, with ample opportunities to catch up with old friends and meet new ones, from far and near. We know that Dublin proved to be a very successful venue back in 1993, offering lots of facilities to nurture these important aspects of the IAMCR conference experience. I am confident that this will continue to be the case for IAMCR-2013.

Many people contributed to making this conference happen. They include the authors of approximately 1,600 papers, the officers of most Sections and WGs who cooperated very well with the local team as well as Janet and Maria, President and General Secretary of the Association. On behalf of the School of Communications, I must acknowledge the help offered by colleagues in ISS and the Finance units in DCU as well as staff in Campus Residences, the Helix and Trispace. Finally but by no means least, I must offer a special word of thanks to the patience and heroic efforts of the small team of part-time staff involved in the requisite planning, design, admin tasks required to make this conference possible: Pauline Jones, Trish Morgan, Mami Ishikawa, Gloria Macri and Franziska Fehr.

Plenary Sessions

Conference Opening Session & Welcome Event for IAMCR-2013
Address by Michael D Higgins, President of Ireland

The Dublin organisers are pleased to have as keynote speaker at opening session of the IAMCR-2013 conference, Michael D Higgins, the President of Ireland. Our speaker has distinguished himself in recent weeks as one of the few politicians from mainstream political parties in Europe today who has expressed robust opposition to the current orthodoxies of austerity and imposing the huge costs of a bankrupt banking system onto the public finances.

Amongst other notable past works and achievements, Michael D. Higgins was a high-profile Minister for Arts and Culture and Gaeltacht [1993-97] with a distinct, indeed unique record of policy reforms in that area. As Minister, he also had direct responsibility for the promotion of the Irish language and for the economic and social development of Irish-speaking areas in the State; And for many years, he was a foot soldier in academe: as a lecturer in sociology at the National University of Ireland in Galway, where his lecturing engaged with media, communication and inter-cultural relations, inter alia.

Michael D Higgins will address the opening session of the conference at 18.00 sharp on Tuesday 25th June. All those wishing to attend should plan to attend earlier in the afternoon to Register (desks open from 14:00pm till 17:15).

Date and Time: Tuesday 25 June 2013, 17.30 Sharp [till 20.30]
Venue: Mahony Hall, the Helix building [also relayed to The Theatre, the Helix ]
Paschal Preston, Chair of LOC: ‘It was just 20 years ago…’
Welcome to DCU: Prof. Brian McCraith, President of D.C.U
Address by: Michael D Higgins, President of Ireland,
Chair: Prof. Farrel Corcoran

Wine Reception: 19.00 – 20.30 A drink with some light/finger food

Plenary No. 1: A Largely ‘Western’ Financial Crisis ? - Implications for Shifts in Geo-Political and Global Communication Orders

The current financial and economic crisis is frequently referred to as a ‘Western’ affair. However, some influential researchers, not least Giovanni Arrighi, have emphasized how such long wave crises can serve to amplify or accelerate fundamental shifts in geo-political relations and power structures. At the same time, researchers from our own and neighbouring fields talk about ‘soft power’ and other features of the changing forms and patterns of global power associated with the onward march of mediatisation. In this session, some leading scholars, situated in different world regions, consider the implications of the current Western crisis for unfolding shifts in .i) geo-political power and global economic or technological leadership and .ii) in the global communication order or sector.

Date and Time: Wednesday 26 June 2013, 09:00 – 10:30
Venue: Mahony Hall, the Helix building [ also relayed to The Theatre, the Helix ]

SPEAKERS:
Prof. Hu Zhongrong, Vice President of Communications Univ. of China, and Director of the National Centre for Radio & TV Studies, Beijing, China
Prof. Francis Nyamnjoh, Univ of Cape Town. As well as being a highly respected anthropologist and cultural theorist, Francis Nyamnjoh is Novelist and writer ]
Prof. Annabelle Sreberny, former President of the IAMCR and Chair of Global Media and Comms. at the School of Oriental and African Studies, London.

Chair: Janet Wasko, President of IAMCR, University of Oregon
Plenary No. 2: A ‘Three-Legged Stool’? Environmental & Economic Crises and the Strategic Implications for the Role, Content and Practices of Mediated Communication

This plenary session explores the deeper, underlying linkages between the current Economic and Environmental ‘Crises’ and the implications for the role, content, structures and practices of the media of public communication, not least with respect to any environmentally sustainable new model or ‘paradigm’ for social and economic development.

Date and Time: Thursday 27 June 2013, 11:00 - 12:30
Venue: Mahony Hall, the Helix building [ also relayed to The Theatre, the Helix ]

SPEAKERS:
John Bellamy Foster, Dept. of Sociology, University of Oregon. Author of several books engaging with the environmental crisis and political-economic processes - presentation titled ‘Communication and the Epochal Crisis’
Richard Maxwell, Professor and Chair of the Department of Media Studies at Queens College, City University of New York.

Chair: Dr Pat Brereton, Head, School of Communication, Dublin City University.

Plenary No. 3: Crisis, ‘Creative’ Destruction and the Affordances of the Digital Moment and Social Media

Title: ‘Communicative Capitalism’
In this presentation, Jodi Dean interrogates celebrations of social media that view Twitter as a force of revolution. In considering the ways contemporary networked media entrap users into support for capitalism, it sets out five types of exploitation specific to the new communication order.

Date and Time: Friday 28 June 2013, 11:00 - 12:30
Venue: Mahony Hall, the Helix building [ also relayed to The Theatre, the Helix ]

SPEAKER:
Jodi Dean, Professor of Political Science, at Hobart and William Smith Colleges, Geneva, New York

Respondents:
Kevin Rafter, School of Communications, DCU.
Eugenia Siapera, School of Communications, DCU.

Special Session: B)
At the 'Eye of the Storm': Crisis and Austerity Politics in the Eurozone and their Mediation in "Peripheral" States

Date and Time: Wednesday 26 June 2013, 16.00-17.30
Venue: The Theatre, in the Helix building

One of the more enduring and endearing features of the IAMCR Conferences is that the agenda makes explicit efforts to reflect on key features and issues of the local cultural, social and political setting in which the conference is hosted. Considering the 2013 conference theme of "Crisis?", this enduring feature poses interesting question as to the most relevant register or meaning of the "local" in this case.

The persistent headline 'local' story here [Dublin as host city of IAMCR-2013] is, of course, that of economic/financial ‘crisis’ and its fallout, including deep austerity policies. But, equally, we may observe in much of the mediated discourses and debates as to the causes and especially the solutions to said Crisis that the ‘local’ in this context is not only Dublin or Ireland but also the ‘EU’ region, or what is sometimes named as the ‘European Community’.

Thus, this special session will address some of the key political and media aspects of the “crisis” experience in Greece, Portugal, Ireland and Spain since the outbreak of the great western financial/economic crisis. The panel will identify certain commonalities and differences in the ongoing crisis and austerity experience across these national settings. In certain respects, all have been at “the eye of the storm”

Special Session: C)
ALAIC-ECREA: SPECIAL SESSION

Date and Time: Thursday 27 June 2013, 9.00-10.30
Venue: The Theatre, in the Helix building

Chair: Alenka Jelen, ECREA General Secretary, and Fernando Oliveira Paulino
ECREA and ALIAC will share this joint Special session
At the same time ordinary academic staff in many universities where executive have take the “world class” turn simply do not have the material resources to purchase access to the increasingly expensive journals, the majority of them controlled by a small number of corporations or financial interests. For the most part, the leaders and executives of universities tend to remain blissfully blind to the costs imposed by their close embrace of corporate publishing interests whilst neglecting if not undermining the potential for open source or other alternative forms of academic publishing.

At the same time, we observe that the spread of neo-liberal policy and regulatory regimes in recent times have tended to celebrate the role of “self-regulation” when it comes to particular industrial sectors. So again, in suitably critical and reflexively nuanced mode, we may ask: “why not us too”?

Scope for professional control over work quality, output, and principles underlying academic performance indicators in this field.

Date and Time: Thursday 27 June 2013, 14.00-15.30
Venue: The Theatre, in the Helix building

This special session at IAMCR-2013 in Dublin which will aim to continue the lively discussion at one panel on the final morning of the Durban-2012 conference. This session will focus on the scope for enhancing Professional control or self-regulation over work quality, output, and performance etc measures related to the communication studies and neighbouring academic fields.

Many other professions have successfully exerted control and influence over measures of work output, its quality and notions of “excellence”, leading-edge, even “world-class” academic achievements – “so why not us” ? These questions may be seen as particularly relevant at a time when top Executives in many universities around the world, often “advised” by a small set [oligopoly] of major corporations, are increasingly prone to define and impose very particular sets of indicators and targets for academic work output. The latter often conceive and measure academic output, quality and performance in ways which ill-match the values and interests of rank-and-file lecturers and professors in the communication studies and related fields.

Special Session: E)
Changes in Academia/ IAMCR’s Future: IAMCR President’s ‘Task Force’ Committee.

Date and Time: Thursday 27 June 2013, 16.00-17.30
Venue: The Theatre, in the Helix building

Historically, IAMCR has a double structure as an academic organization and as an NGO with political aims: as a self-governed academic organization of the civil society, IAMCR on the one hand cares about academic freedom and life, the development and distribution of theory and empirical work in the field of communication and media studies, and the exchange between academics. As an NGO IAMCR was and is mainly concerned with freedom of information and the press, the North-South-division and digital divide, and gender and ethnicity social justice.

Both fields have changed radically in the last decades. Looking at the academic life, it is to say that universities worldwide are becoming increasingly part of the economic sector and have to work under economic and political pressure. This creates problems for the freedom of research and education, the use of research results, the working conditions of academics, and growing costs of education for students. The field of communication and media studies is also changing continually, as the relevance of media and communication is growing over time. This includes new problems for democracy worldwide – from the increased role of surveillance and data privacy to digital divides, and to the role of gigantic enterprises like Google, Facebook...
This Special Session engages with how such a historically-rare deep economic crisis may imply deep or rapid shifts in the global field of Communication Studies.

Panel Co-ordinator and Chair:
Prof. Hopeton Dunn, Director of the Caribbean Institute of Media and Communication and Professor of Communications Policy and Digital Media, University of the West Indies, Jamaica

From Neoliberal Pin-Up to ‘Austere’ or ‘Failed’ State? Aspects of Crisis, ‘Creative Destruction’ and Austerity in the Republic of Ireland

Date and Time: Friday 28 June 2013, 14.00-15.30
Venue: The Theatre, in the Helix building

There is a tradition at IAMCR conferences where the host team organize a session which enables attendees at the conference to get an overview and feel for key social, economic, political or cultural developments in the host country. Given the prevailing historical juncture in the Irish setting, the theme for this session writes itself: “Crisis …”

This session will comprise three papers by prominent local scholars. They will review the key analyses and explanatory frames, as well as briefly describe selective key contours and features of the ongoing crisis and austerity and the responses to same by citizens or social movements so far.

SPEAKERS:
Peadar Kirby, Professor Emeritus, Univ. of Limerick, & Adjunct Prof. at Univ. of Iceland, Reykjavik
“Crises and Responses: Going Backwards or Forwards?”

Prof. Rob Kitchin, Director, National Institute of Regional & Spatial Analysis (NIRSA), National University of Ireland, Maynooth; and founding Chair, Irish Social Sciences Platform (ISSP)

Session 1: Interactive session: Speaking truth to power about gender and communication: International and regional policy developments towards Beijing+20

Slot Code: GENW2a
Time: Wed 26 June 11.00-12.30
Room: QG27

Normative frameworks and recommendations related to the problematic nexus of gender and communication have been elaborated over the past two decades, starting with the Platform for Action adopted at the Beijing World Conference on Women (1995) and moving on to the World Summit on the Information Society (2003-2005) and its follow-ups. In spite of on-going efforts to foster those standards, supranational and national media policies and media organizations do not seem to have made great progress in implementing principles aimed at promoting gender equality in and through the media. This panel addresses core questions such as: what has been the power of existing normative frameworks in structuring social change and fostering gender equity in and through the media? Are media policy interventions, at all levels, being ideated and implemented with a much referred to ‘gender-aware’ and ‘gender-sensitive approach’? Do existing monitoring practices, critical analyses and stock-taking exercises inform policy debates related to the diffusion and use of media and information technologies? How could disconnections of knowledge and understanding amongst media professionals, scholars, advocates and policy-makers be addressed and overcome?

This workshop will teach young scholars and emerging researchers how to use the online platform www.globalmediapolicy.net to monitor, analyze and visualize key issues, developments and trends in media and communication governance. The workshop look, particularly, at the WSIS +10 process and create database entries and visual maps. At the end of the workshop, all participants will be able to use the platform for their own work and create thematic sections and visualizations in their fields of interest.
